Mr. Huifcutt's testimony citsed the examination. Mr. Mott surprised everybody by asking time to put in a brief.

Commissioner Shields gave him and also Mr. Rose that privilege, although the latter didn't ask for or want it, and fixed the day of returns from out of town to be manipulated. He was also present when Mr. Gould wrote the telegram which was sent over the wires throughout the country, in which he said he believed that Mr. Cleveland was elected.

This announcement, coming direct from Mr. Gould, allayed the excitement. Inspector Byrnes stayed with Mr. Gould until the excitement was over and the crowd in front of the Gould residence had dispersed.
